

Stephen Szabo

Stephen Szabo
Johns Hopkins

"Parting or Mending Ways? German-American Relations in Bush II"

Friday, April 1, 2005
12:00 p.m.
Mershon Center
Room 120

Lunch will be served to those who RSVP to Beth Russell no later than Wednesday, March 29, 2005.

Stephen Szabo is Professor of European Studies at the Nitze School for Advanced International Studies at Johns Hopkins. His area of expertise is Western Europe (specifically, Germany), American foreign policy, European Union and transatlantic relations, military power and strategy, NATO, and strategic and security issues. His current research focuses on German politics, foreign and defense policy and U.S.-European relations.

He is author of The Diplomacy of German Unification (1992); The Bundeswehr and the Future of Western Security (1990); The Changing Politics of German Security (1990); and editor of The Successor Generation: International Perspectives of Postwar Europeans (1983).

Prior to joining the faculty at SAIS, he was on the faculty at the National War College, the Foreign Service Institute, Georgetown University and the University of Virginia. He is a past fellow with the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholar.